

Shhh ... it's our koala whisperer at work

A CLAIRVOYANT has given a lost Sunshine Coast koala a hand to get home – by “telling” the furry little guy he was “in the wrong tree”.

After he was “told”, the koala came down from the tree and, guided by “animal whisperers” Michael and K Taylor, walked back to his enclosure.

And just to prove it happened, Dr Taylor – took photographs of the incident (right).

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

Couple guides 'lost' koala back home

FROM PAGE 1

THE incident happened when the couple visited Australia Zoo last week.

Dr Taylor said he had received tickets to the popular Sunshine Coast attraction as a birthday gift some time before.

He said he and his wife had enjoyed a nice quiet day at the zoo when they noticed "an unhappy koala" up a tree that was not of any gum variety.

Dr Taylor said the conversation that followed with the koala comes from a series of images that "animal whisperers" have in their mind when attempting to converse with animals.

"He was trying to eat leaves of what was definitely not a SAFE: The koala makes it home, thanks to the Taylors.

gum tree, so I said to him, 'You are in the wrong tree,' he said.

"I told him you have got to come down."

So the koala did.
Dr Taylor's photographs of the incident show the koala climbing down the tree, crossing the foliage and then walking beside Mrs Taylor for about 30 metres along the bitumen path.

"He walked alongside for about two minutes happy as a clam," Dr Taylor said.

"We walked along the path and around the bend to the koala enclosure and the keeper saw us and said to the koala, 'Where have you been? We've been looking all over for you'."

The 46-year-old former United States GP said the keeper then scooped up the koala and put him back into the enclosure.

"She thanked us and told us he was a very old koala," he said.

Dr Taylor, whose clients include television clairvoyant Lisa Williams and international self-help Hay House author Dr Wayne Dyer, said he has only dabbled in animal whispering.

He said he has previously conversed with spiders, a goanna, cats, dogs and even a horse. Late last year the Daily published a photograph of "an angel" taken by Dr Michael at the Hyatt Regency at Coolumb.

People can see the video of photographs at <http://tinyurl.com/4z2an7k>

Dr Taylor, who met his wife K at a Sydney 2006 spiritualist conference, said he first learned of his psychic talents when he learned he could see inside his Christmas presents without opening the gifts.

See the photos and video of the event @ sunshinecoastdaily.com.au